Equinox – day and night are in balance. Tonight, we honor Ganesh, the Indian Elephant God. He who helps us balance when confronted with obstacles. He who helps us move around or through the obstacles while holding us, supporting us, assuring us that we can weather the change. The Goddess, as light, is dying, but we know that She will return. In the meantime, we take Her harvest into our bodies, held tight by Ganesh, and take knowledge of the Cycle of Life into our souls.

Come with us as we join with the Goddess and Ganesh facing and overcoming our obstacles of change. This makes us stronger to face and correct any negative changes for the Earth, ourselves, each other, and community, through dance, song, and sacred enactment. Bring a fruit or vegetable for the Harvest Altar.

Our last ritual of 2012 is All Hallows Eve to be held on October 27
